HOW WE DO BUSINESS

Our core business – Business Continuity Management – makes a valuable contribution to society. For many people our advisory services are, quite literally, life-saving. Corporate responsibility defines how we achieve our goals. The way we conduct our business affects our relationship with groups such as: Major Enterprises who use our services including mission critical companies Their employees whom they trust them for their life and money Their Clients who are in continuous need to their products and services Governments that regulate their industries Our reputation with these people and the trust they place in our services is critical to our business. But our pride in what we do does not mean we can ignore the critical need of a continuous development, enhancement and improvement of our services.

ETHICS

By demonstrating to stakeholders that we meet high ethical standards in all aspects of our work, and that we are committed to helping address challenges, we can maintain their support. Our reputation, the standards we operate to and our employment practices also affect our ability to attract, retain and motivate the best people.

OUR CLIENTS

Almost every company has something about client focus in its mission statement. The larger the service organization, the more executives tend to insulate themselves from clients. Some rely on client-satisfaction surveys and focus groups. Others simply assume that clients are just like them! These kinds of service companies end up delivering services that suit them, not their clients.
